

Bullying, Suicide, and Violence

Presented by:
Dr. Butch Losey, Ed.D., PCC-S, NCC
International Speaker and Author

Bullying, Suicide and School Violence affects students from elementary to high school. The age of students who have suicide ideation or suicide completions continues to get younger and younger. This workshop will take a practical approach for addressing a variety of crisis situations in a school setting. The workshop will begin with participants learning a general model of crisis intervention that utilizes empathy strategies for supporting crisis communication. Participants will practice this six-step model for crisis intervention for the counseling setting using participant contributed scenarios.

Participants will also learn de-escalation strategies that can be used by counselors or teachers for in-the-moment crisis situations. This will be grounded in the developmental model of crisis and participants will have an opportunity to experience the verbal escalation continuum and practice de-escalation techniques.

Bullying will be discussed in terms of the negative impact to the victim and how to use a five-factor screening tool developed by Dr. Losey to screen risk for children experiencing persistent bullying. A screening process will be proposed and practiced based on an actual case study.

The participant will learn factors that contribute to suicide ideation and the primary information needed to make a determination of suicide lethality. Participants will practice a suicide assessment using an actual case study.

About the Presenter

Dr. Butch Losey is an international speaker on bullying prevention and school violence and the author of Bullying, Suicide and Homicide: Understanding, Assessing, and Preventing Threats to Self and Others for Victims of Bullying (Routledge, 2011). He created the Bullying Lethality Identification System (BLIS) to assist school professionals with assessing risk for victims of bullying. He has been a member of a county wide crisis response team and has worked on a suicide hotline. His current research on violence prevention is based on personal interviews that he has conducted with numerous school shooters. Dr. Losey is the Clinical Coordinator for Xavier University's graduate counseling program and the Executive Director of the Greater Cincinnati Counseling Association.
